LOT 18 - $1 NORTH AFRICA SILVER CERTIFICATE 1935

Description

The 1935A $1 Silver Certificate with a yellow seal, also known as the "North Africa" note, is a unique and collectible piece of US currency. Here's what you need to know about its value:

Historical Significance:

- Issued during World War II for American troops stationed in North Africa (Operation Torch).
- The yellow seal was a security measure to easily identify and potentially demonetize the notes if captured by the enemy.

Value Factors:

The value of your North Africa Silver Certificate depends on its condition:

- Circulated Condition: These notes have been used and will show wear and tear. Their value can range from $20 to $150 depending on the level of detail remaining. More worn examples might be closer to $20, while those with crispness and some remaining color vibrancy can reach higher values within this range.
- Uncirculated Condition: Uncirculated notes with sharp printing and original folds can be significantly more valuable. Grading by a reputable service like PCGS or NGC determines the exact worth. Generally, higher grades (MS-63 and above) can reach several hundred dollars, with exceptional uncirculated specimens (MS-67 and above) potentially reaching $1,000 or more.

Additional Factors:

- Serial Number: Fancy serial numbers (repeating digits, low numbers, etc.) can add a slight premium to the value for some collectors.

Recommendation:

For the most accurate valuation, consider getting your North Africa Silver Certificate professionally graded by PCGS or NGC. This step establishes the condition and verifies its authenticity, providing a more precise market value. This information is valuable whether you intend to sell the note or keep it as part of your collection.
